

Helping HFT with Hike: Machu Picchu Mission

Local girl fundraising to support adults with learning disabilities.

Hi everyone, my name is Anna Barber. I am a 20-year-old student, studying Zoology at Bangor University. I have recently set myself the goal of raising over £4300 for the HFT charity.

The HFT charity allows adults with learning disabilities to live the most independent lifestyle possible. From personalized tech, supported living, day opportunities to even finding love, the HFT charity is a driving force in giving those, who need it most a chance to experience things in life that most of us take for granted. The HFT charity website gives a more in-depth explanation of their charity work and also shows examples of just how your donations can change an individual's life.

Living in rural Cheshire, I have developed a love for the outdoors and have pretty much grown up with caravan holidays in the countryside and long walks in muddy fields. So when my university gave me the opportunity to climb Machu Picchu in Peru in aid of the HFT charity I jumped at the chance. In August this year I will be completing a 6-day hike to the lost city of Machu Picchu and then sleeping for two nights in the Amazon rainforest.

I have already participated in several fundraising events and given presentations to schools to help reach my goal of around £4,300. I still have plenty of fundraising ideas in mind and am reaching out to anyone who may be able to help me achieve my target. I am aware that this is a daunting challenge to take on, but I do believe that with your help it is achievable! If you are reading this currently and would be willing to join me on this journey, then please check out the Just Giving link and any donation would be greatly appreciated.
